Former Chemical Information Services President launches Drug Process Licensing Associates, LLC

June 6, 2011 – DALLAS, Texas - Former President and Founder of Chemical Information Services, Ron Schwarz, has returned to the chemical and pharmaceutical industry with the launch of his new entity, Drug Process Licensing Associates.

Founded in 2010 along with chemist Dr. Milan Soukup from Hoffman La-Roche, Drug Process Licensing Associates evaluates existing manufacturing processes for active pharmaceutical ingredients and then creates new, novel and more cost effective alternative routes which are patented and then licensed to their clients. "This is an idea that I've had for a very long time," Schwarz said. "The pharmaceutical industry is one that I know very well and I am certain that we can create positive results for our clients."

In addition to evaluating manufacturing processes, Drug Process Licensing Associates is also in the process of compiling a comprehensive database for the chemical and pharmaceutical industries entitled PHILL (which stands for Pharmaceutical Intelligence Database). "My bread and butter at Chemical Information Services were the databases that I compiled. I am very excited about PHILL and I can't wait for people all over the world to have access to the information that we're putting together." Schwarz said.

With an expected launch in September 2011, Schwarz is hesitant to discuss the specific content of PHILL at this time but said, "PHILL will contain a lot of information that is critical to decision makers in the pharmaceutical industry. Most of the content will be available free of charge." Schwarz added, "the chemical and pharmaceutical industries are sectors that both Milan and I are very passionate about. Here at Drug Process Licensing Associates, we feel that we bring very unique experience and expertise to the table. We are very excited by the direction that this company is headed and we expect many great things to come!"
